HYACINTHS.

Many persons think that only the double varieties are desirable, but it is not so. The well grown Double Hyacinths are exceedingly beautiful, but taken as a whole they are by no means superior to the single. The bells of the double varieties are often larger than the single, while those of the latter are much more numerous. The single sorts are also earlier, bloom freely and are the best adapted for the more artificial modes of culture in water, &c.

ALL OF THE SINGLE VARIETIES, AND THOSE OF THE DOUBLE DESIGNATED THUS * DEVELOP THEIR FLOWERS MOST FREELY IN WATER;—THEY ARE ALSO THE BEST ADAPTED FOR VERY EARLY FORCING.

All the varieties will flower equally well in pots or the open border.

THE TULIP.

THE TULIP is the most valuable class of Hardy Bulbs for decorative effect. It will thrive, like the Hyacinth, in almost any soil or situation. A rich soil is not necessary, but well rotted manure and leaf mould may be applied when the earth is poor. The drainage should be good before planting, and the soil fine and deep. Plant in October and November. The Early flowering kinds should be set five or six inches apart, and the late varieties seven or eight inches. Cover from two to three inches deep.

EARLY DWARF DUC VAN THOL TULIPS.

This variety is the earliest of the Tulips, and probably the most generally known. They will grow and bloom freely in the smallest pots, or in sand, moss or water. The best effect is produced by planting in large pots six, twelve or more Bulbs of the different colors. If planted in September and October, and forced as recommended for Hyacinths, they may be had in bloom in December and January. In the open garden they will bloom in April, often in company with the Crocus and Hyacinth, and make a really beautiful display.

EARLY SINGLE TULIPS.

These flower about the first of May, and continue in blossom until the late varieties come in. Those who have never seen a fine collection of this class of Tulips in bloom, have no idea of their great beauty. They may be cultivated in sand or water, pots and baskets in the same manner as Hyacinths.

EARLY FLOWERING DOUBLE TULIPS.

The Double Tulips require the same treatment as the Single varieties, and can like those be grown in pots, but we think, with the exception of a few, we prefer seeing them in the flower garden, where they present a grand mass of rich and varied colors. Culture in moss, sand or water, same as Hyacinth. Those indicated thus * are best suited for pot culture.

LATE FLOWERING SINGLE OR SHOW TULIPS.

This section is known from the preceding by their generally taller and later bloom; but of fine form or outline, and constitute the florist varieties grown for competition in their various strains of tints, which are often rich and beautiful in their combination of stripes and feathered margins, with clear white and yellow ground colors. This is the variety for which such fabulous sums were paid for a single root at the time of the "Tulip Mania" in Holland.

THE CROCUS.

THE CROCUS is one of our earliest Spring flowers, delicate and tasteful in form, and varied and gay in color. They begin to flower in sheltered situations in March, though early in April is their season of greatest beauty. They deserve much more attention than they receive, and should be in every garden. They are of easy culture, and with ordinary care fine flowers can be had at the season when flowers are scarcely to be had, except by those who can afford expensive erections for their culture. The proper time for planting in the open ground is in October and November. Plant in ordinary rich garden soil—a deep light soil is preferred—placing the Bulbs about two to three inches deep and about three inches apart. It is well that the bed be covered with a little straw or coarse litter, to prevent throwing out by the frost, which sometimes occurs unless the ground is high and dry. The Bulbs may be taken up every Summer, but the better way for amateurs would be to let them remain where planted for two or three years, and then take them up and re-plant in other beds. They produce a fine effect when planted in beds cut out of the lawn, either alone or as a border for beds filled with later growing bulbous flowers. A splendid effect may also be produced by scattering the Bulbs broadcast upon the lawn, and planting under the turf wherever they fall. In this way the lawn will be gay with their showy blossoms as soon as the snow is off in Spring. They should not be disturbed unless the Bulbs become too numerous, as they bloom more profusely when well established. For blooming in-doors during Winter they are excellent. For pot culture use rich sandy soil, and be sure of perfect drainage, a liberal supply of water being needed during the blooming season; therefore any defect in the drainage would cause the soil to become sodden. Treatment in sand, moss and water same as recommended for Hyacinths.

CROCUS VERSICOLOR.

Twelve extra fine and very distinct varieties; a great improvement upon all other varieties. Price, 75 cents per dozen.

THE SNOWDROP.

The earliest of the Spring flowering Bulbs, and universally admired for its elegant, drooping, snow-white blossoms. They are admirably adapted for planting close to the margins of borders or beds where, if allowed to remain undisturbed, they will annually produce a very pretty effect before Crocus comes into bloom. They may also be grown in sand, moss, or water.

NEW DUTCH SEEDLING CROCUS.

THE LILY.

THE LILY has always been a favorite flower, and some of the varieties are truly magnificent. They will, like other Bulbs, grow well in any ordinary good garden soil. A good way is to remove a portion of the old soil, and replace the same with peat or leaf mould and sand, mixing the whole well together to the depth of eighteen or twenty inches. In such soil they will thrive with vigor, and produce an abundance of flowers. The best time for planting is in October and November, though they can also be planted in the Spring. Plant about a foot apart and four inches deep. They can also be cultivated in pots, for which purpose plant any time from November to February, in a compost of loam and leaf mould, with a small quantity of sand. A six inch pot should have one root, which cover two inches deep. Our Bulbs are large and in fine condition and will reward the cultivator with a splendid array of flowers.

THE NARCISSUS.

THE NARCISSUS ranks next in importance to the Hyacinth, and is a splendid flower for Winter and Spring decoration. Some of the varieties are double and showy, and the single are delicate and beautiful. The most beautiful class of the Narcissus family is the Polyanthus Narcissus, which have a perfume like that of the Jonquil. Culture in-doors the same as recommended for the Hyacinth. As the Bulbs are large, we recommend a five or five and a half inch pot for one Bulb, and a seven inch pot for three. Culture out of doors essentially the same as the Hyacinth, except that the crown of the Bulb should be at least five inches under the surface, and for Winter protection the bed should be covered with about three inches of leaves or evergreen branches. Time of planting same as the Hyacinth.

THE RANUNCULUS.

THE RANUNCULUS, for symmetry of form and brilliancy of color, are scarcely to be surpassed. It is supposed by many that our climate is too severe for their cultivation, but by following the directions here given they may be grown without difficulty. For its culture it requires a good depth of rich garden soil; when the situation is defective, remove the old material to the depth of nearly two feet, and four to five feet in width, for one bed, replacing it with rich, fresh pasture or garden loam. On this should be laid a liberal dressing of well decayed manure mixing it a little with the under soil, and finish by adding as a surface stratum about six inches of good porous loam, well mixed with decayed cow dung and leaf soil, in which to plant the tubers. Plant in October, November and December and protect thoroughly from frost by a covering of straw or leaves. The Ranunculus forms its roots near the surface, and therefore is unable to withstand a dry and parched soil; hence should dry weather occur in April and May, give the beds a liberal drenching of water, taking care to wet the foliage as little as possible. After the flowers fade the foliage turns yellow, which shows the tubers to be in a fit state for immediate removal, and being carefully taken up, fully dried and placed in some cool airy situation. For culture in pots, the same compost described above may be used, planting three bulbs in a five-inch pot. Place them in a cold frame and remove them few at a time to the greenhouse or conservatory.

SINGLE HYACINTH.

THE ANEMONE.

THESE hardy tubers are admirably adapted for producing a successive display of splendid groups and masses. The flowers larger than the Ranunculus, have large outer guard petals like the Hollyhock. Like the former they are dwarf and compact, but also differ in giving a much richer and more elegantly divided foliage and yield a longer continuation of bloom. Plant in October or November, or as soon as the ground can be worked in Spring, and protect as recommended for Ranunculus. In culture the Anemone will succeed in much less enriched soil than the Ranunculus, but in other respects the same general treatment will answer.

THE IRIS.

THE flowers of the Iris are large and handsome, the colors rich and varied, while its cultivation is unusually simple, succeeding in any ordinary garden soil. They should be planted in clumps of three or more, in a situation where they can remain undisturbed for several seasons. Should be planted in the Fall as early as possible as the bulbs do not keep well out of ground.

THE CYCLAMEN.

ONE of the most desirable Bulbs for the Winter house blooming; its neat chaste, graceful little flowers, varying from snow white to crimson, secures for it universal admiration, while the simplicity of its culture brings it within the reach of even those who can command no better accommodation than a sitting-room window. They are easily cultivated in Pots and should be planted in September and allowed to dry away in May, keeping the bulbs in sand through the summer.

SCILLA.

A VERY beautiful genus of plants and one that should be grown by every lover of early Spring bulbs; the species enumerated below are the most distinct and beautiful sorts, and will be found deserving of extended cultivation. They are all quite hardy and adapted for cultivation in the open ground; they are also suitable for growing in pots. They are of a dwarf habit, averaging six inches in height, many of them being even less than that, the prevailing colors being blue and white. The flowers are borne in spikes of from six to twelve blooms each, the individual bell-like blossoms being gracefully pendant with the exception of Peruviana, which produces large erect trusses of bloom. When grown in pots the number of bulbs placed in each should be regulated in accordance with the size of the pot, and for open ground planting, their very dwarf growth adapts them for margins, edgings, &c.

DOUBLE TUBEROSE.

The Tuberose is one of the most delightfully fragrant and beautiful of summer flowering bulbs, throwing up tall spikes of double white flowers two or three feet high, which remain in bloom a long period. The bulbs may be planted from February to May. When they are needed very early plant in the greenhouse or hot-bed in February or March, and for a succession of flowers in April or May. In planting, remove the useless small offset around the main root, and place a single tube in a pot four or five inches wide. Use good rich bodied loam. Start them slowly, in a temperate heat, in a hot bed, forcing pit, or frame; water slightly at first, and when the bulbs begin to grow increase the quantity. Those started early should be supplied with good bottom heat till May, when they may be shifted into pots six or seven inches wide. By the first of June all may be plunged out in a warm border, staking each plant to prevent their being broken by the wind. Will also succeed well planted in the open ground in May.

First quality started in pots for early flowering, 35 to 50 cents each. $3.50 to $5.00 per dozen.

HILL'S PATENT LAWN MOWING MACHINE.

The Only Perfect Lawn Mower ever Invented.

THIS is a small, light machine for mowing lawns and grass plots. It is pushed forward by a handle with a cross-head, and moves on a roller. The spiral cutter is rapidly revolved by means of the gears, cutting the grass very evenly and rapidly, and leaves a smooth, close-shaved turf. It cuts the grass with less labor and time, and much more perfectly than it can be cut by lawn scythes. The Castor-Roller is to be used when mowing borders. When not in use it can be carried on the rear end of the machine. The grass can be cut very close to shrubs and trees with the roller out. By the action of the blades, the cut grass is scattered evenly over the ground. This acts as a mulch to protect the grass from too much heat, and improves the sod by its decay. The height of cut is regulated by adjusting the Shoes, and the handle is adjustable to different heights by the chain-hook. The grass should be cut as often as once a week, as the frequent cutting causes the grass to grow thick and fine, and retains its fresh color. The draft is very light when the grass is not allowed to grow too long before cutting. All the parts of this machine are made to interchange, and in case of breakage can be replaced. This machine cuts 14 inches wide, and weighs 65 lbs. Price of machine, $40.00.
